ELKS DISPORT THEMSELVES AT THEIR ANNUAL OUTING

Local People Enjoy Good Time at Shady Grove Park

BALL GAME IS FEATURE

Monessen Team Defeats Charleroi Nine in Good Battle--Return at Night

With a nice crowd in attendance, an enjoyable time was had by members of Charleroi Lodge No 494, B. P. O. Elks at their annual picnic and outing at Shady Grove Park, near Uniontown Wednesday. A special excursion train was run to the park, leaving Charleroi in the morning at 8:30 o'clock. On the way to the park stops were made at a number of places where the Charleroi delegation was increased by the addition of people from other valley town. Park amusements together with a special sports program arranged by the local committee furnished diversions a-plenty for the visitors. Dancing and boating seemed to be the chief features.

In the afternoon a ball game was pulled off between the Monessen team and Charleroi. In this the beseball playing ability of the Monessenites showed up to better advantage than that of Charleroi tossers, and they won by a score of 11 to 4. Monessen got ten hits and had three errors and Charleroi got six hits and had three errors. The local team lined up as follows: Jenkins, 2nd, L. Mitchell, shortstop, Winfield, catch; Donaldson, 1st; McGowan, pitcher; R. Drum, 3rd; C. Drum, left field; Rickey, middle field; Geo. Hornbake, right field. Only one accident occurred.

The return trip was made leaving the park at 10 o'clock. The committee in charge of outing was Hugh E. Fergus, S. K. Long, L. Mitchell, Frank E. Adams, Frank Kyle, W. W. Williams and D. R. Hormell.

John A. Bell Will Start Operations at Once-- Big Coal Works

Annoncement has just been made at the county seat of a gigantic deal in Washington county coal lands by which a prominent Pittsburg man becomes the owner of 4,500 acres of black diamonds located in Crosscreek township. The deal, which has been pending for some time and has just been finally consummated, represents a transaction of nearly half a million dollars and is said to mean the opening in the near future of extensive coal works in northwestern Washington county.

The purchaser of the property is John A. Bell of Carnegie, vice president of the Colonial Trust company, of Pittsburg. The land he has secured consistts of some half dozen farms lying just east of the village of Crosscreek.

The property is remarkably well located for active operations as it lies less than three miles from the line of the Wabash railroad and is on a spur of the Pennsylvania railroad running from Burgettstown.

EXPERT ADVICE.

In the campaign that Pittsburg is waging to bring more industries to that city an appeal has been made to H. C. Frick, the coal and coke king, as well as one of the chief factors in the financial group of New York city. Mr. Frick still retains his residence in Pittsburg, where he holds big property interests. He signified his willingness to co-operate in every possible way, and at the same time vouchsafed some advice on how to proceed. This was to concentrate upon some definite policy—to find out exactly what is to be done—and then entrust the execution of the plans to a small committee, the fewer the better.

Coming from a man who has had such marked success as a captain of industry, and whose reputation in that line is world wide, this advice is good for every community Charleroi in particular. Our town for some years has resolved to resolve, and is still resolving. We have resolved to get more industries here, but we have never resolved very definitely as to the what, when, where and how. Too many cooks spoil the broth, and our talk of all pulling together and all doing something at once should give way to Mr. Frick's advice, and after having definitely decided upon some one thing choose a small committee to execute it. H. C. Frick knows what he is talking about, and the things that he has done shows most conclusively that he knows how to do them.

A FLYLESS CITY.

Hubbard City, Texas, has attained the distinction of becomng a flyless city. Because of rules of cleanliness and sanitary regulations that are rigidly enforced, the fly is not given a chance. Consequently it is conspicuous by its absence in Hubbard City.

The way the fly was vanished in Hubbard City is quite simple. Hubbard City has a mayor who believes the fly is not a necessary evil, and by the enforcement of the ordinary laws of cleanliness the fly has been eliminated. The streets of the city are swept twice a week. No manure, filth garbage or scraps are allowed to remain within the city where flies can reach them. With nothing to eat and no place to breed the flies naturally died out, and the diseases which flies communicate are conspicuous by their absence, thereby increasing the health rate of the city.

As many diseases are now attributed to the housefly, including infantile paralysis, it can readily be seen how Hubbard City is a winnner. Add to the advantage the average of $10 a year which every householder invests in door and window screens, mosquito netting, fly paper, spatters and tanglefoot, and the saving by the simple process of keeping clean is of big advantage to the residents of Hubbard City, because of an up-to-date mayor.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

With the Charleroi Church League season at its height and interest runinng high, baseball yarns are timely. The fan is not suposed to do any coaching, but the wide awake player often gets some valuable tips from the spectators, who are at times able to realize the psychological moment better than the player who is trying to make a timely move. Some reminiscences from old timers may be particularly valuable to local league players just now.

One of the most illuminating illustrations of the susceptibility of the played to the people sitting behind him was afforded one day when in a close game, "Buck" Ewing the greatest catcher of all history, was trying to hold a runner on second. There was also a runner on first and a hard hitter—Jake Stenzel by name—was at bat.

After Ewing had thrown the ball down to second three or four times a fan up in the stand yelled to him: "Why don't you get that man at first—he's half way down to second all the time?"

Ewing took the tip. Making a bluff to heave the ball to second he suddenly turned and hurled it to first, getting the runner there by three or four yards.

"Chief" Zimmer, one of the greatest backstops of his day, or, indeed of any other day, tells of a time when he was catching a game for the old St. Louis club in New York. The score in the ninth inning was 2 to 1 in favor of St. Louis, but in the last half of the last inning the Giants got a man around to third base, with only one man out.

The batter lifted a foul fly way over beyond the left fielder's reach. Zimmer set sail for it and easily could have made the catch. As he was putting out his hands for the ball a man in the 50-cent seats yelled:

"Let it go, Zim; if you catch it the man on third will score."

Zimmer, in telling the story, said: "I let the ball go and it was only reckoned as a foul. On the next pitch the batter had struck out, and the next man flied out."

John Clarkson, after his transfer from Chicago to Boston, used to tell of a time when a Hub fan came to his relief in an emergency. Clarkson was pitching against his old teammates. The score was 2 to 1 in Boston's favor, but every base was occupied with a White Stocking and the count on "Pop" Anson at bat, was just "three and two."

"Aim one at his head, John," shouted a Chicago man in the grand stand. "He's mad enough now to hit at anything."

THE ALEUTIAN ISLANDS.

They Extend East and West For More Than a Thousand Miles.

Few persons are aware that the shortest route from San Francisco to Japan is by way of Alaska. Nearly a thousand miles are saved to vessels trading with the orient by coasting along the Aleutian islands rather than following the Hawaiian route.

The Aleutian islands, which extend in a chain east and west for more than a thousand miles, are inhabited by the remnant of the Aleuts. Their war of the revolution closed just as the American Revolutionary war began. So patriotic were the Aleuts, so brave in their struggle for independence, that they succumbed to the Russians only after a conflict of nearly fifty years, and then simply because the race was almost exterminated in the struggle.

While the Aleutian islands must eventually form an important link in the commerce between the United States and the orient, other islands link our country with the vast empire to the north. In the narrow Bering strait lie two little islands, one occupied by Russia, the other by the United States, so that citizens of the two great nations live on respective islands within a few miles of each other.

Finances of Heroism.

A new light on heroism is shed by Dr. Henry Rundle in his little book, "With the Red Cross In the Franco-German War." "Those soldiers," he says, "who have the good fortune to return whole and healthy are, of course, the heroes of the family. One of our patients, a young French cavalry soldier, did not wish his friends to know of his safety. He thought that if kept in suspense for some little time his family would be so overjoyed at his return that their substantial tokens of welcome would be the greater."

"I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Barosma. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 36 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."—M. S. Langworthy, Tryonville, Pa.

After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use cruches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hope had left him, and he had no faith in any remedy took six bottles of Thompson's Barosma, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely [illegible] the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer in the face of such facts? How can they suffer when W. F. Hennings' guarantees to refund the money if a cure is not effected? Thompson's Barosma, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. 5

Ancient Rome's Libraries.

The libraries of ancient Rome were immense and splendid. Lucullus, whose name is associated with table luxuries, expended much of his wealth on books. His library, says Plutarch, had "walks, galleries and cabinets open to all visitors." Julius Caesar proposed to open this library definitely to the public.

How were these vast libraries, in addition to the book shops, filled? With his trained staff of readers and transcribers, a publisher could turn out an edition of any work at very cheap rates, and almost at a moment's notice. There was no initial expense of typesetting before a single copy could be produced, no ruinous extras in the shape of printers' corrections. The manuscript came from the author; the publisher handed it over to his slaves, and if a book of modest dimensions, the complete edition could be ready, if necessary, within twenty-four hours. Actually, then, books were produced and sold more easily and quickly in ancient Rome than they are in modern London.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The "Iliad" Not a Myth.

The fall of Troy after a ten year siege by the Grecian princes about 1184 B. C. has long been considered as a rather mythical foundation for Homer's immortal epic, the "Iliad." But in 1876 the excavations of Schliemann on the reputed site of Troy brought to light under the ashes of two superincumbent fortress cities the remains answering to the descriptions of Homer and a hidden vault containing goblets, bowls, vases, gems, jewels, armes de luxe and like articles in gold, silver and bronze. These treasures are now generally acknowledged to be the veritable remnants of the once vast riches of Priam, which, although depleted by ten years of costly warfare in the purchase of supplies and mercenaries and the final sack of the ruined city, were thus preserved to enrich the museums of Europe and greatly increase our realization of the wealth and art of that ancient Ilium, which we have hitherto been disposed to consider a poet's dream.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Getting the Exact Spot.

An emergency call from a policeman for a tape measure kept two women waiting in the dressmaker's parlor for five minutes. There were other tape measures there which the dressmaker might have used, but she was too busy pondering the circumstance that had suddenly converted her into an ally of the police department. Presently the policeman returned the tape.

"What did you want it for?" she asked.

"To help find the right place to shoot a horse with a broken leg," he said. "The vital spot is just three inches above that little swirl in his forehead where a dozen crowns seem to meet. I am not very good at guessing, so we thought it safest to find the exact spot with a tape measure."—New York Sun.

Music of the Drum.

All musical authorities have agreed that when used in a proper way the drum is thoroughly musical. The common snare or side drum is freely used in musical composition. A large number of drummers performing simultaneously out of doors produce good music. In this connection Berlioz, the composer, pointed out that a sound that was insignificant when heard singly, such as the clink of one or two muskets at shoulder arms or the thud as the butt comes to the ground at ground arms, becomes brilliant and attractive if performed by a thousand men together.

Crumpled Them.

We observe that the man's fingers are all twisted and bent into the most uncouth shapes.

"Poor fellow!" we say to our friend. "Evidently he is a victim of rheumatism."

"No," our friend explains. "He is deaf and dumb and has been trying to talk Scotch dialect on his fingers."—

Another Boring Question.

"I say, pa, is a man from Poland called a Pole?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then, pa, why isn't a man from Holland called a Hole?"—Comic Cuts.

Insult Added.

The Man (with a grouch)—Will you please kindly get off my feet? Little Man (with a bundle)—I'll try, sir. Is it much of a walk to Cleveland?

BAPTISTS CAPTURE SHUTOUT VICTORY FROM PRESBYS

Fifth Street Lads Unable to Hit Adams Offerings To Any Extent

FINAL SCORE IS 2 TO 0

Playing errorless ball behind Adams whom the First Presbyterians couldn't hit nohow, the Baptists won their game postponed by reason of a tie Wednesday night. They not only won it, by the way, but scored a shut-out on the First Presbyterians, 2 to 0.

It all happened in the fifth inning, about thusly: Paxton, hailing from North Charleroi, found one of Osborne's benders for a single to left and calmly pilfered second base. Adams got a base on balls and then got caught off the bag in a double play when Seheiler tried to bunt and hit one in the pitcher's hands. With a hopeless tinge on things, Paul Nutt, 16-years-old, and mighty, fanned the vacancy once, then met the ball sumptuously with the result that it went over Smith's head for a beautiful single. Paxton scored, and Nutt went second on an attempt to catch the first mentioned runner at home. Oller threw wild to second and Nutt completed the circuit.

The Presbyterians never got nearer home plate than second base, and that only once. The Baptists had three men on base with none out in the fourth, when Pitcher Osborne and his helpers settled things for the time being. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

"Eddie" Butz the Lutherans second baseman arrived in town yesterday evening and will again don the Church League spangles.

* * *

"Hi" Henry, the famous State College sprinter, has been on the Lutherans' bench during the last three games. "Hi" ran the hundred yards in 3-5 seconds in his Senior year at college, (1907) and would be a valuable "pinch" base runner for any team.

* * *

Prof. I. T. Daniel umpired in Jack Mathias' place Wednesday evening and showed good judgment at all times. "Prof." has had plenty of experience and knows the rules.

* * *

Morris, with the Baptists, is acquiring the reputation of being one of the most versatle and valuable players in the league. He plays all positions with equal facility.

* * *

As an evidence of the excellence of Adams' twirling for the Baptists, attention is drawn to the fact that the Baptist outfielders did not have a single chance.

* * *

Osborne, by good pitching, coupled with a liberal allowance of that evasive element termed luck, got out of a somewhat tight pinch in the fourth inning, when, with the bases full and no one out, Mason struck out, and a neat double play retired the side.

* * *

"Long John" McIlvaine is certainly proving his claim to having developed a batting streak which has all the appearances of the lasting kind. He batted a thousand in last night's game, and the hits were of the right brand.

MOURNING CUSTOMS.

They Are Very Ancient, and Experts Differ as to Their Origin.

The origin of going into mourning was discussed recently by a body of anthropologists. Some students hold that the wearing of black was originally a disguise assumed as a protection from the dead person's spirit. The idea was that the deceased was naturally disgusted to find himself dead and that he wreaked his resentment upon his relations. Therefore the relations thought that to alter their appearance would be a means of escape, and all over the world veils were used to hide the faces of mourners—a practice still surviving in the impenetrable veil of the widow.

The disguises mourners used—such as the veil, the turning of the clothes inside out and the shaving of the head, as practiced by the Ainos—were simple enough, but supernatural beings were always, it appeared, easy to trick.

Another theory of mourning was that it was put on to warn people that its wearers had been contaminated by death. There was an idea of pollution attached to the great mystery. All early people shared the horror of death and the fear of the return of the spirits. Thus in the Sudan widows sprinkle their food with ashes to prevent their husbands' ghosts from eating it.—Exchange.

When leaves fall they are actually cut off from the stems by a layer of cork that forms across the base of their stalks. No nourishment is left in the dead leaf, but only the waste products of vitality, of which the tree is well rid.

THE CAMERA OBSCURA

From It Was Evolved Our Modern Photographic Apparatus.

The camera was invented by an Italian named Baptista Porta, though it was not at first used for photographing. It was in reality merely a dark room, into which the light was admitted through a little round hole in one side. The rays of light coming from objects outside of this room entered it through this aperture and made a picture on the other side of the room, glowing in all the beauty and color of nature itself, but rather indistinct and upside down.

This dark room was contrived by Porta about the middle of the sixteenth century. He improved it later by placing a glass lens in the aperture and outside a mirror which received the rays of light and reflected them through the lens so that the image upon the opposite wall within was made much brighter, more distinct and in a natural or erect position. This was really the first camera obscura, an invention which is enjoyed to the present day.

Now our modern photographic camera is merely a small camera obscura in its simplest form, carrying a lens at one end and a ground glass screen at the other. It is, however, often much more complicated in its construction.

The Secret Test.

"How," the president of the Fat Man's club was asked, "did you prevent fraud among your applicants for membership? Didn't some men try to get in that weren't up to the standard weight?"

"Yes," the portly officer replied, "but it was no use. Applications had to be presented in person at the Polk building, fifth floor. There was no elevator. The applicant climbed the five flights of stairs.

"At the top he met a man who asked, 'Were you looking for the Fat Man's club?'

"'Yes.'

"'The main office is on the first floor,' the man said. 'Your application is rejected. We receive no man who can climb five flights of stairs.'"—Youth's Companion.

EXPERT ADVICE.

In the campaign that Pittsburg is waging to bring more industries to that city an appeal has been made to H. C. Frick, the coal and coke king, as well as one of the chief factors in the financial group of New York city. Mr. Frick still retains his residence in Pittsburg, where he holds big property interests. He signified his willingness to co-operate in every possible way, and at the same time vouchsafed some advice on how to proceed. This was to concentrate upon some definite policy—to find out exactly what is to be done—and then entrust the execution of the plans to a small committee, the fewer the better.

Coming from a man who has had such marked success as a captain of industry, and whose reputation in that line is world wide, this advice is good for every community Charleroi in particular. Our town for some years has resolved to resolve, and is still resolving. We have resolved to get more industries here, but we have never resolved very definitely as to the what, when, where and how. Too many cooks spoil the broth, and our talk of all pulling together and all doing something at once should give way to Mr. Frick's advice, and after having definitely decided upon some one thing choose a small committee to execute it. H. C. Frick knows what he is talking about, and the things that he has done shows most conclusively that he knows how to do them.

A FLYLESS CITY.

Hubbard City, Texas, has attained the distinction of becoming a flyless city. Because of rules of cleanliness and sanitary regulations that are rigidly enforced, the fly is not given a chance. Consequently it is conspicuous by its absence in Hubbard City.

The way the fly was vanished in Hubbard City is quite simple. Hubbard City has a mayor who believes the fly is not a necessary evil, and by the enforcement of the ordinary laws of cleanliness the fly has been eliminated. The streets of the city are swept twice a week. No manure, filth garbage or scraps are allowed to remain within the city where flies can reach them. With nothing to eat and no place to breed the flies naturally died out, and the diseases which flies communicate are conspicuous by their absence, thereby increasing the health rate of the city.

As many diseases are now attributed to the housefly, including infantile paralysis, it can readily be seen how Hubbard City is a winnner. Add to the advantage the average of $10 a year which every householder in [illegible] and window screens, mosquito netting, fly paper, spatters and tanglefoot, and the saving by the simple process of keeping clean is of big advantage to the residents of Hubbard City, because of an up-to-date mayor.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

With the Charleroi Church League season at its height and interest running high, baseball yarns are timely. The fan is not suposed to do any coaching, but the wide awake player often gets some valuable tips from the spectators, who are at times able to realize the psychological moment better than the player who is trying to make a timely move. Some reminiscences from old timers may be particularly valuable to local league players just now.

One of the most illuminating illustrations of the susceptibility of the player to the people sitting behind him was afforded one day when in a close game, "Buck" Ewing the greatest catcher of all history, was trying to hold a runner on second. There was also a runner on first and a hard hitter—Jake Stenzel by name—was at bat.

After Ewing had thrown the ball down to second three or four times a fan up in the stand yelled to him: "Why don't you get that man at first—he's half way down to second all the time?"

Ewing took the tip. Making a bluff to heave the ball to second he suddenly turned and hurled it to first, getting the runner there by three or four yards.

"Chief" Zimmer, one of the greatest backstops of his day, or, indeed of any other day, tells of a time when he was catching a game for the old St. Louis club in New York. The score in the ninth inning was 2 to 1 in favor of St. Louis, but in the last half of the last inning the Giants got a man around to third base, with only one man out.

The batter lifted a foul fly way over beyond the left fielder's reach. Zimmer set sail for it and easily could have made the catch. As he was putting out his hands for the ball a man in the 50-cent seats yelled:

"Let it go, Zim; if you catch it the man on third will score."

Zimmer, in telling the story, said: "I let the ball go and it was only reckoned as a foul. On the next pitch the batter had struck out, and the next man flied out."

John Clarkson, after his transfer from Chicago to Boston, used to tell of a time when a Hub fan came to his relief in an emergency. Clarkson was pitching against his old teammates. The score was 2 to 1 in Boston's favor, but every base was occupied with a White Stocking and the count on "Pop" Anson at bat, was just "three and two."

"Aim one at his head, John," shouted a Chicago man in the grand stand. "He's mad enough now to hit at anything."

THE ALEUTIAN ISLANDS.

They Extend East and West For More Than a Thousand Miles.

Few persons are aware that the shortest route from San Francisco to Japan is by way of Alaska. Nearly a thousand miles are saved to vessels trading with the orient by coasting along the Aleutian islands rather than following the Hawaiian route.

The Aleutian islands, which extend in a chain east and west for more than a thousand miles, are inhabited by the remnant of the Aleuts. Their war of the revolution closed just as the American Revolutionary war began. So patriotic were the Aleuts, so brave in their struggle for independence, that they succumbed to the Russians only after a conflict of nearly fifty years, and then simply because the race was almost exterminated in the struggle.

While the Aleutian islands must eventually form an important link in the commerce between the United States and the orient, other islands link our country with the vast empire to the north. In the narrow Bering strait lie two little islands, one occupied by Russia, the other by the United States, so that citizens of the two great nations live on respective islands within a few miles of each other.

Finances of Heroism.

A new light on heroism is shed by Dr. Henry Rundle in his little book, "With the Red Cross In the Franco-German War." "Those soldiers," he says, "who have the good fortune to return whole and healthy are, of course, the heroes of the family. One of our patients, a young French cavalry soldier, did not wish his friends to know of his safety. He thought that if kept in suspense for some little time his family would be so overjoyed at his return that their substantial tokens of welcome would be the greater."

"I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Barosma. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 36 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."—M. S. Langworthy, Tryonville, Pa.

After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use cruches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hope had [illegible], and he had no faith in any remedy took six bottles of Thompson's Barosma, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely [illegible] the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer in the face of such facts? How can they suffer when W. F. Hennings' guarantees to refund the money if a cure is not effected? Thompson's Barosma, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. 5

Ancient Rome's Libraries.

The libraries of ancient Rome were immense and splendid. Lucullus, whose name is associated with table luxuries, expended much of his wealth on books. His library, says Plutarch, had "walks, galleries and cabinets open to all visitors." Julius Caesar proposed to open this library definitely to the public.

How were these vast libraries, in addition to the book shops, filled? With his trained staff of readers and transcribers, a publisher could turn out an edition of any work at very cheap rates, and almost at a moment's notice. There was no initial expense of typesetting before a single copy could be produced, no ruinous extras in the shape of printers' corrections. The manuscript came from the author, the publisher handed it over to his slaves, and if a book of modest dimensions, the complete edition could be ready, if necessary, within twenty-four hours. Actually, then, books were produced and sold more easily and quickly in ancient Rome than they are in modern London.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The "Iliad" Not a Myth.

The fall of Troy after a ten years' siege by the Grecian princes about 1184 B. C. has long been considered as a rather mythical foundation for Homer's immortal epic, the "Iliad." But in 1876 the excavations of Schliemann on the reputed site of Troy brought to light under the ashes of two superincumbent fortress cities the remains answering to the descriptions of Homer and a hidden vault containing goblets, bowls, vases, gems, jewels, armes de luxe and like articles in gold, silver and bronze. These treasures are now generally acknowledged to be the veritable remnants of the once vast riches of Priam which, although depleted by ten years of costly warfare in the purchase of supplies and mercenaries and the final sack of the ruined city, were thus preserved to enrich the museums of Europe and greatly increase our realization of the wealth and art of that ancient Ilium which we have hitherto been disposed to consider a poet's dream.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Getting the Exact Spot.

An emergency call from a policeman for a tape measure kept two women waiting in the dressmaker's parlor for five minutes. There were other tape measures there which the dressmaker might have used, but she was too busy pondering the circumstance that had suddenly converted her into an ally of the police department. Presently the policeman returned the tape.

"What did you want it for?" she asked.

"To help find the right place to shoot a horse with a broken leg," he said. "The vital spot is just three inches above that little swirl in his forehead where a dozen crowns seem to meet. I am not very good at guessing, so we thought it safest to find the exact spot with a tape measure."—New York Sun.

Music of the Drum.

All musical authorities have agreed that when used in a proper way the drum is thoroughly musical. The common snare or side drum is freely used in musical composition. A large number of drummers performing simultaneously out of doors produce good music. In this connection Berlioz, the composer, pointed out that a sound that was insignificant when heard singly, such as the clink of one or two muskets at shoulder arms or the thud as the butt comes to the ground at ground arms, becomes brilliant and attractive if performed by a thousand men together.

Crumpled Them.

We observe that the man's fingers are all twisted and bent into the most uncouth shapes.

"Poor fellow!" we say to our friend. "Evidently he is a victim of rheumatism."

"No," our friend explains. "He is deaf and dumb and has been trying to talk Scotch dialect on his fingers."—

Another Boring Question.

"I say, pa, is a man from Poland called a Pole?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then, pa, what isn't a man from Holland called a Hollow?"—Comic Cuts.

Insult Added.

Man with a wooden leg—Will you please get off my foot? Lit tle Man with a bundles—I'll try, sir, is it much of a walk to the island?

BAPTISTS CAPTURE SHUTOUT VICTORY FROM PRESBYS

Fifth Street Lads Unable to Hit Adams Offerings To Any Extent

FINAL SCORE IS 2 TO 0

Playing errorless ball behind Adams whom the First Presbyterians couldn't hit nohow, the Baptists won their game postponed by reason of a tie Wednesday night. They not only won it, by the way, but scored a shut-out on the First Presbyterians, 2 to 0.

It all happened in the fifth inning, about thusly: Paxton, hailing from North Charleroi, found one of Osborne's benders for a single to left and calmly pilfered second base. Adams got a base on balls and then got caught off the bag in a double play when Scheiler tried to bunt and hit one in the pitcher's hands. With a hopeless tinge on things, Paul Nutt. 16-years-old, and mighty, fanned the vacancy once, then met the ball sumptuously with the result that it went over Smith's head for a beautiful single. Paxton scored, and Nutt went second on an attempt to catch the first mentioned runner at home Oller threw wild to second and Nutt completed the circuit

The Presbyterians never got nearer home plate than second base, and that only once. The Baptists had three men on base with none out in the fourth, when Pitcher Osborne and his helpers settled things for the time being. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

"Eddie" Butz the Lutherans second baseman arrived in town yesterday evening and will again don the Church League spangles.

* * *

"Hi" Henry, the famous State College sprinter, has been on the Lutherans' bench during the last three games."Hi" ran the hundred yards in 3-5 seconds in his Senior year at college, (1907) and would be a valuable "pinch" base runner for any team.

* * *

Prof. I. T. Daniel umpired in Jack Mathias' place Wednesday evening and showed good judgment at all times. "Prof." has had plenty of experience and knows the rules

* * *

Morris, with the Baptists, is acquiring the reputation of being one of the most versatile and valuable players in the league He plays all positions with equal facility.

* * *

As an evidence of the excellence of Adams' twirling for the Baptists, attention is drawn to the fact that the Baptist outfielders did not have a single chance.

* * *

Osborne, by good pitching, coupled with a liberal allowance of that evasive element termed luck, got out of a somewhat tight pinch in the fourth inning, when, with the bases full and no one out, Mason struck out, and a neat double play retired the side

* * *

"Long John" McIlvaine is certainly proving his claim to having developed a batting streak which has all the appearances of the lasting kind He batted a thousand in last night's game, and the hits were of the right brand.

MOURNING CUSTOMS.

They Are Very Ancient, and Experts Differ as to Their Origin.

The origin of going into mourning was discussed recently by a body of anthropologists. Some students hold that the wearing of black was originally a disguise assumed as a protection from the dead person's spirit. The idea was that the deceased was naturally disgusted to find himself dead and that he wreaked his resentment upon his relations Therefore the relations thought that to alter their appearance would be a means of escape, and all over the world veils were used to hide the faces of mourners—a practice still surviving in the impenetrable veil of the widow.

The disguises mourners used—such as the veil, the turning of the clothes inside out and the shaving of the head, as practiced by the Ainos—were simple enough, but supernatural beings were always, it appeared, easy to trick.

Another theory of mourning was that it was put on to warn people that its wearers had been contaminated by death. There was an idea of pollution attached to the great mystery. All early people shared the horror of death and the fear of the return of the spirits. Thus in the Sudan widows sprinkle their food with ashes to prevent their husbands' ghosts from eating it.—Exchange.

When leaves fall they are actually cut off from the stems by a layer of cork that forms across the base of their stalks. No nourishment is left in the dead leaf, but only the waste products of vitality, of which the tree is well rid.

THE CAMERA OBSCURA.

From It Was Evolved Our Modern Photographic Apparatus

The camera was invented by an Italian named Baptista Porta, though it was not at first used for photographing. It was in reality merely a dark room, into which the light was admitted through a little round hole in one side. The rays of light coming from objects outside of this room entered it through this aperture and made a picture on the other side of the room glowing in all the beauty and color of nature itself, but rather indistinct and upside down

This dark room was invented by Porta about the middle of the sixteenth century. He improved it later by placing a glass lens in the aperture and outside a mirror which received the rays of light and reflected them through the lens so that the image upon the opposite wall within was made much brighter, more distinct and in a natural or erect position This was really the first camera obscura, an invention which is enjoyed to the present day.

Now our modern photographic camera is merely a small camera obscura in its simplest form carrying a lens at one end and a ground glass screen at the other It is, however often much more complicated in its construction

The Secret Test.

"How," the president of the Fat Man's club was asked, "did you prevent fraud among your applicants for membership? Didn't some men try to get in that weren't up to the standard weight?"

"Yes," the portly officer replied, "but it was no use. Applications had to be presented in person at the Polk building, fifth floor. There was no elevator The applicant climbed the five flights of stairs.

"At the top he met a man who asked, 'Were you looking for the Fat Man's club?

"'Yes'

"'The m..in office is on the first floor,' the man said. 'Your application is rejected. We receive no man who can climb five flights of stairs.'"—Youth's Companion.
